GlendOberfest at the Ranch. Journey back in time to the late 1800's to an atmosphere of Sleepy Hollow with dirt roads and dark orange groves, overshadowed by old farm houses. Explore what's lurking around every corner of the 17-acre Sahuaro Ranch Park historic area at the city of Glendale Parks and Recreation GlendOberfest presented by Banner Thunderbird Medical Center.

Round up all your ghosts and goblins for a safe and exciting Halloween night with Glendale Parks and Recreation. The event will be held from 6 to 9 p.m., Friday, Oct. 31 at Sahuaro Ranch Park, 59th Avenue and Mountain View Road. Event parking will be at Glendale Community College; enter from 59th and 67th avenues and Via Gaucho. Look for the park shuttle hay rides to hitch a ride to the main gate. Event gates open at 6 p.m.

Plenty of candy and prizes will be awarded to children participating in the activities. Children can also trick-or-treat at the ranch's historic buildings. For more information, call (623) 930-2042.

Be Safe On Halloween. Children are four times more likely to be struck by a car on Halloween than any other night of the year. The City of Glendale wants you to have a "spooktacular" night, so this is why the city is promoting the message "Be Safe, Be Seen" to remind families of some precautions while enjoying the much anticipated night of fun. GPEC Award. The city of Glendale was recently presented the 2008 Outstanding Regional Contribution Award by the Greater Phoenix Economic Council (GPEC).

The award, which recognized Glendale's efforts to successfully attract and execute Super Bowl XLII, was presented to Glendale Mayor Elaine Scruggs and Glendale City Manager Ed Beasley at GPEC's Annual Dinner held at the Arizona Biltmore.

Super Bowl XLII had an estimated regional economic impact of more than $500 million dollars and drew incredible attention to the region. Click here for more information about Glendale's Economic Development efforts.
