

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE: September 26, 2014
CONTACT: Anna Caggiano, Library Assistant III, 623-930-3439

Brelby Theatre Presents: Things That Go BUMP in the Night!

Glendale, Ariz. — Downtown Glendale’s own Brelby Theatre Company will bring you plenty of thrills and chills in “Things That Go BUMP in the Night!” on Monday, Oct. 27 at 7 p.m. at the Velma Teague Branch Library, 7010 N. 58th Ave.

Appropriate for both adults and teens, this performance of spooky scenes, songs, and monologues will help set the mood for the season. Shelby Maticic, Brelby’s artistic director, notes that “Brelby is thrilled to be partnering with the Velma Teague Library to present a medley of Halloween favorites for the Glendale community.”

Recognized in a 2012 “Best of the Valley” feature by “Phoenix Magazine,” Brelby Theatre Company is the brainchild of Brian and Shelby Maticic. Founded in 2009, Brelby found a home in 2012 in a new theatre space across the street from the Velma Teague Library. They’ve recently produced several well-reviewed and sold-out hits, including “She Kills Monsters” and “Little Shop of Horrors,” and offer acting classes for all ages through Glendale’s Parks and Recreation Division.

For more information on Brelby Theatre Company, including upcoming plays, visit their website at <http://brelby.com>. The program is free. No registration is required. For more information on the event, call 623-930-3431.

###